Chapter 1 by Sapphire Rivers

My sister and I have always have gotten what we wanted. No. Were not spoiled, there was always one thing missing. Even with our father being King, there was always something wrong. When we were little we always were with mother, then slowly as we got older we saw less and less of her. She always seemed healthy and bright.

We never thought to look in the cellar. Or the tower that we were NEVER supposed to go in. She was always in one of those places.

It's been a month since we saw her, my sister and I searched the whole palace for her. Finally we came upon the tower. We crept in, half expecting sirens to blast. We silently went up the stairs and we saw one door at the top. I crept up to it, while my sister stood guard.

I peeked in and saw my mother in chains, as my father stood over her.
